Her interference was some of the pretuest the college boys have ever run against, and they were up against the real article when they hit the unbroken formation.

Georgetown gained at will, losing the ball on downs not more than seven times. All of the gains were made through tackle and around the end, and it was simply impossible for men of the light weight and little experience of the Spiders to break through and get their man. The score was eighty-four to nothing, but should have been less.

Captain Tabb was on the side lines and was officiating as time-keeper. There was only fifty-five seconds of time to play, and the ball was Richmond's, Kerfoot ran for six yards, and the spectators saw visions of a score, and so did Captain Tabb and the Georgetown time-keeper told him with real gentfility "that time was up, but let them play and mayhap score." The boys hit the line. There was a mix-up.

with real gentility "that time was up, but let them play and mayhap score." The boys hit the line. There was a mix-up and the fumbled ball was carried down the field by Georgetown for a final score. Lankford, Morrison and Pollard played perhaps best for Richmond, and for Georgetown, we can especially name the "Georgetown team."

PARIS, Oct. 31 .- The Municipal Council PARIS, Oct. 31.—The Municipal Council had a stormy session to-day in consequence of a motion, made by M. Colly, to name certain streets in Paris after Blanqui, Flourens and other heroes of the siege during the Franco-Prussian war.

M. Colly declared that the honor was due them "in recognition of their efforts to save Paris from the shameful capitulation prepared by General Trochu."

His proposal aroused a perfect pandemonium, which the president of the Council was unable to quell. The Socialists rose en masse and shook their fists in the faces of the Nationalists.

Finally quiet was restored and M. Colly's motion was carried.

welcome. Even the staunchest ministerial mouthpieces among the newspapers openly condemn it.

Lord Sallsbury apparently arranged matters with the Queen, at Balmoral, a week ago. His Lordship's own inclination was to resign the Premiership and devote himself exclusively to the Foreign Office. He wrote Her Majesty to this effect, but she declined to accept the suggestions.

Lord Salisbury, therefore, went to Balmoral to discuss the question, with the result that the Queen carried her point. Public anxiety is, to some extent, relieved by the conviction that Lord Salisbury's experience will be available to direct the broad lines of policy of the prospective foreign minister.

If the Daily Telegraph's announcement had been a feeler to ascertain the temper of the public toward Lord Lansdowne's appointment, he would certainly never become Minister of Foreign Affairs, but though the appointment to the Secretary-ship has not yet been officially condemed, it is accepted on all sides as a settled thing.

The Standard which says it has learned mouthpieces among the newspapers openly it is accepted on an succeptibing.

that Charles Thompson Ritchie will be given a high post, says:

"The appointment of the Marquis of Lansdowne to be Her Majesty's principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, is an almost inconceivable blunder. He has neither the character, qualifications or experience for such a post. The only plausible excuse for the appointment is that Lord Salisbury will still control the Foreign Office, while Lord Lansdowne relieves him of his routine duties."

Henry Norman Visits Russian Prison Of course, I visited the great prison of Irkutsk, and was most courteously allowed to spend several hours there, and to examine it closely and converse freely, through my own interpreter, with any of the prisoners. It is a straggling mass of buildings, many of wood, and all old and in need of repair. These are surrounded by a pallsade of great posts, twenty feet high, with pointed ends. I went into every part of the prison that I could see, including the hospital, the workshops, the laundry and the kitchens, and visited every one of the large rooms and almost laundry and the kitchens, and visited every one of the large rooms and almost every cell. In all these I saw but two things to find fault with—the practice of herding together criminals of all ages, tried and untried, and the long time, in some cases amounting to two years, which many of the prisoners spend there before their cases are finally judged. This latter evil is caused partly by the great difficulty. evil is caused partly by the great difficult of collecting evidence from many par of Siheria, but chiefly because the authorities do not supply magistrates enough to cope with the numbers of those arrested. An additional difficulty is the carlety of languages spoken by inals themselves; three times during m visit was the Governor, who accompanied me most of the time, obliged to send to another part of the prison for a prisoner to interpret a request made to him as we passed. The prison is supposed to hold 700 crim nals, but it contained 1,024 men on the day of my visit, twelve wo-men, and ten children accompanying their mothers. Of these no fewer than 621 were L ttle Kings and Queens.

NEW ORLEANS,October 31.—The TimesDemocrat to-morrow will print the final reports of its correspondents on the cotton crop of 1999.

The crop is an exceedingly spotted one.
The concensus of opinion appears to be that making the allowance for a moderate increase of acreage a maximum of yield of 9,750,000 bales is on the cards. This would mean an excess of about 600,000 as compared with the actual production of 1899. The superabundance of Texas has been offset by the comparative dearth of the remainder of the bel

A Hestess Joke.

What are called bread and butter letters in society's argot, that is, the con-ventional notes of thanks, which Mrs. Grundy properly insists should be writ-ten by the guests after a visit to ex-press thanks for the hospitality receiv-ed, are by no means easy to write, and are upt to be amusingly trite, says the are apt to be amusingly trite, says the New York Tribune. A fashlonable wo-man, who entertains a great deal and is gifted with a keen sense of humor, has kept all her thank letters for the last six months, and has thereby a rather comical set of autographs from the va-rious members of her set, all of whom have paid her more or less visits during the season.

If I distribute them properly, I get on very well, but I have an awful suspicion that the one just sent off to Mrs. X, is an exact duplicate of my last!"

At a large house party not long ago a hostess who appreciated this difficulty, sent a groom to the station with type-written notes of thanks, written and adwritten notes of thanks, written and ad-dressed to herself. "The mistress says that if you will read and sign this, it will save you trouble," said the servant to the guests, as he delivered to each one of the unsealed notes and a stylo-graphic pen, and while the former laugh-ed at the joke, they thankfully took as
